

Peter Baines – Keynote Introduction

It is my great pleasure to introduce Detective Inspector Peter Baines who has been invited to talk about Leadership Matters.

A little bit about Peter:

He has spent the best part of the last two decades working in the fascinating area of forensic science, investigating some of the state's most gruesome and horrific crimes.

But it was in 2002, in response to the Bali bombings, where Peter's talents as a leader under pressure were identified on a National level.

Then, in 2004 the unthinkable occurred with the Boxing Day Tsunami.

The Australian team again headed overseas - this time to Thailand and it was here that Peter's leadership theories were really tested with "no time, no staff and no money...but as Peter says no worries".

He now balances his time between duty with the Forensic Services Group of the NSW Police and a passion for inspiring leadership in others - leadership that is pragmatic, down to earth and results focused.

Please give a warm welcome to Peter Baines.
