

Anne Mahlum

INTRODUCTION

Anne Mahlum is an entrepreneur, CEO, investor, athlete and philanthropist, who is passionate about empowering individuals to live life on their own terms.

She is the founder AND FORMER CEO of the national non-profit Back on My Feet, an organization that uses running as a vehicle to help those experiencing homelessness become empowered to change their lives. She is also the founder and former CEO of [solidcore], a pilates-inspired fitness company that Anne scaled to 100 locations across the US before she sold to private equity IN 2023 and shared millions with her employees. Anne has also run a marathon on every continent.

Recognized for her leadership and entrepreneurial spirit, she has given three TEDx talks, been honored multiple times, and featured by CNN, CNBC, the Washington Business Journal, and ABC World News.

A true self-made success story, Anne is now spending her time investing, advising, speaking, writing a book, playing beach volleyball, and supporting work aimed at helping those struggling with addiction and who have been wrongly convicted.

Get ready for a truly inspiring journey.
